

LIMBS OF WOMAN FOUND IN BOSTON

Almost Surely Part of Body in Suit Case.

MAY IDENTIFY VICTIM NOW

Police Think They Have Good Clue in Rings on Fingers of Severed Hands.

BOSTON, Oct. 28.—The suit-case mystery of September 21, when the dismembered torso of a woman was found in a dress suit case floating in the harbor near the Winthrop shore, is brought into prominence again by the finding of a second dress suit case floating in the Charles river, near the new Charles-town Bridge.

The case contained arms and legs, said by medical experts to be those of a woman. The police say there is no doubt that they are the missing members of the torso found at Winthrop on September 21.

With the finding of the limbs there is now a chance that the victim of the tragedy may be identified, as on one of the hands there were three rings, which may give a clue to her identity.

The limbs just found were encased in a wrapping identical with that found about the torso recovered at Winthrop. While investigating the Winthrop mystery the police located two pawnbrokers who had sold dress suit cases to a man answering the same description, and one of the pawnbrokers identified the Winthrop dress suit case as one he had sold the man. That case was fastened by a strap taken from a newer case.

The dress suit case found today was identified by the pawnbroker as one sold by him. Although when sold it had two straps attached to it, one of the straps had been removed, but the strap remaining was of the same shape, and similar in the pattern of the buckle to the strap fastened about the case found at Winthrop.

The limbs had been severed from the body with the greatest care, and the manner in which every separation was made resembled the work of a skilled surgeon.

Prof. Whitney, of the Harvard Medical School, told the police the several limbs correspond to the description of the victim as computed from the measurements of the torso. He was also of the opinion that the limbs would coincide with the torso at the points of dissection.

Low Tide Revealed It.

The discovery was made yesterday afternoon by Edward Fraser, a member of the crew of the lighter S. A. Pike. An unusually low tide prevailed at the time Fraser saw the case floating down stream with a boat hook, which he opened it and unrolled the oilcloth wrapping he was horrified to find two arms and two legs. The legs had been cut at the knees, making six pieces in the thighs, the lower legs and the arms.

In the right hand were found three rings, two of the ring finger and one on the little finger.

Mark on Ring.

On the inner side of the band of an opal ring the initials "H. B." were stamped with a die and these initials, the police believe, are the trade-mark of the jeweler who manufactured it.

All of the rings are of solid gold, but are inexpensive. This, according to the police, apparently disposes of the theory that the victim was a woman of wealth.

The feet and hands had been too well cared for, however, for the woman to have done manual labor.

It is the theory of Chief Inspector William B. Watts, of the department of police, that the case was thrown into the harbor bottom for at least a month, and that the two cases were thrown into the water at the same time.

MISSIONARY RETURNS FROM CHINESE KINGDOM

Rev. Charles A. Killie and wife have returned to this country after sixteen years' work as missionaries in China, and are spending a few days in this city. Mr. and Mrs. Killie passed through the Boxer troubles, where they had some thrilling experiences.

Mr. Killie was appointed by the British minister to take photographs of the "Forbidden City," with its palaces, throne room, private apartments of the Emperor and Empress, hall of ancestral worship, and scenes of martyrdom, where eleven British, and 500 Chinese Christians were beheaded or burned at the stake. He will give an account of his experiences tomorrow evening at the Fourth Presbyterian Church, Thirteenth and Yale streets.

MOTHER CARRIED DEAD BABE IN ARMS FOR HOURS

KENOSHA, Wis., Oct. 28.—One of the most remarkable exhibitions of a woman's love for her children was made at an inquest over the body of a four-months-old child of Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Bauer.

The child died at Pittsburg on a train Wednesday afternoon of convulsions, and rather than allow it to be buried in some Eastern cemetery, the mother carried it all the rest of the long journey to Kenosha. The members of the Bauer family were bound from New York to Kenosha, and they had but money enough to pay the traveling expenses.

DEMOCRATS READY WITH RATE BILL

Said They Have Measure of Their Own.

HEARST IDEA IN MIND

May Vote With Republicans When They Find There Is No Chance for Them.

The Democrats will introduce in the next Congress a railroad bill of their own.

Already, according to the authorities on Democratic policies, John Sharp Williams, who will undoubtedly be chosen again as leader of the Democrats in the House, is working on a bill that will embody his views on the rate and rebate question. There is little doubt that nearly all, if not all, the Democrats will vote for his bill.

Owing to the exceedingly small number of Democrats elected to the next Congress, it is obvious that they will not be able to do much with their measure. The fight, when the wind up comes, will be on whether the Republicans' bill shall be passed or no bill at all.

This being the case, the question of what the Democrats will do assumes interest. They could either stick stubbornly by their bill or they could help the Republicans pass the other bill, thus seconding the wishes of President Roosevelt.

May Help Republicans.

Taking all recent developments into consideration, the wise ones are now predicting that the minority will vote for its bill until the last moment, when they will go over to the Republicans in favor of passing a bill of some sort.

The reasons for this view are given by some of the Democrats as follows: Roosevelt has won many hundreds of friends in the South lately, and this feeling of friendliness on the part of the people will be reflected in great measure by their representatives in Congress. Roosevelt wants to get a railroad bill through in some way, and the Democrats from the South will feel inclined to help him.

Probably Hearst Bill.

It was predicted today by an eminent authority on Democratic policies that the new Democratic bill will be in effect the Hearst bill of last year, and this in spite of the well-known enmity between John Sharp Williams and William Randolph Hearst. It is recognized by the Democrats that the Hearst bill is, after all, a very good one when there is a question of dealing with the rebate abuse on the part of the railroads of the country.

It is also said by authorities on the subject that the absolute and unmitigated abolition of the rebate. It is considered vastly superior to the measure that was introduced by the Democrats during the last session of Congress.

In regard to the extreme probability of the Democrats going over and voting with the Republicans at the last call for votes on the matter, there is some dissatisfaction expressed by Democratic politicians throughout the country.

They say it will be little short of folly for the minority to help the majority put a great amount of power into the hands of the Interstate Commerce Commission when the commission will eventuate as nothing but a huge machine in national politics.

MATTERS OF INTEREST IN MUNSEY'S MAGAZINE

High-Class Articles by Noted Writers for All Lovers of Good Literature.

In the Munsey Magazine for November is a sketch of Alice Roosevelt by Emma F. Kausser, which gives succinctly the characteristics that have made the President's daughter the most-talked-of girl in America and abroad. It is illustrated by a series of photographs which show Miss Roosevelt at various stages of her career, beginning at the age of three.

Article on Bacon.

Frank A. Munsey has contributed an article on Robert Bacon, the recently appointed Assistant Secretary of State. Mr. Munsey has not confined himself to a mere personal sketch of the wealthy young business man who has thrown aside many interests to go into training for the service of the country. He regards the appointment and acceptance thereof as epoch-making in the personnel of the Government service.

It has never been difficult, he says, to induce first-grade, or Ambassador Cabinet officers, Senators, or Ambassadors, but the smaller posts requiring much detail, fruitful of hard work, but little honor, and to which small salaries are attached, have not been so easily filled.

Mr. Munsey asserts that men who have been trained in the details of the service are better equipped to fill the top-notch positions than are men who have had an entirely different business environment for many years.

Farmer of Future.

That the ideal farmer of the future will not be personified by a slovenly bumpkin, but by a man wearing the semblance of a college professor seated in a laboratory, surrounded by microscopes and test tubes is the opinion advanced by Garrett P. Serviss in an article on the dawn of a new agricultural era. He declares that the day is past when scientific farming was regarded as a sure means of separating a man and his bank account.

The birth and development of the University of Chicago are described by Professor Harry Pratt of that institution. "Royal Income and Expenditures," by Walter Littlefield, reveals the fact that while the Czar Nicholas is probably the richest man that ever lived, William of Germany is proverbially "broke."

PIRATE JACKSON'S PALACE BELONGS TO PRISON

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Oct. 28.—Otto Steffel, the confessed pal of Pirate Jackson, and who operated with him on the sloop Dorado, was taken to Cranston prison last night to begin a one-year sentence.

Steffel said he would plead guilty to any charge made against him in connection with the pirate sloop Dorado and the stolen catboat Bessie, and Chief Bigbee, transfer decided to arraign him for the theft of the catboat.

Ten minutes after the arrival of Steffel at Cranston he was arraigned before Judge Palmer. He pleaded guilty and was sent to prison.

JUDGE "ANDY" HAMILTON CHANGES ANOTHER ROUTE

LONDON, Oct. 28.—Although Judge Andrew Hamilton's family, who accompanied him on his European tour, sailed on the Cedric on Wednesday, he evidently intends to prolong his sojourn on this side, as he did not go with them.

He left London on Thursday for Paris, and possibly may return quietly by a French steamer, or perhaps even by the Canadian route.

PATRICK'S CASE WILL GO TO SUPREME COURT

NEW YORK, Oct. 28.—The fact that one of the last legal barriers that intervene between him and the electric chair had been torn away by the decision of the court of appeals against the re-argument of his case was communicated to Albert T. Patrick in Sing Sing today, where he has been for three years under the death sentence for the murder of aged millionaire Rice.

His case will now be taken to the United States Supreme Court by his counsel, former Governor David B. Hill.
